1986 was a year to remember. From new additions to the staff, to the old faces who had been here since time began, each felt a common strength to expand and improve their surroundings. Students strove for acceptance from their peers and for success in life at DCHS. Excelling in their given talents, the achievement was soon in sight. Those students had to strive for their success, it wasn't given to them. Thus, the "QUEST" had begun . . . it started with decisions to make a difference in their school and themselves. Every accomplishment was a jewel added to the string of success. Each went about fulfilling the "QUEST" in different ways, all were working toward the same goals, greater confidence in our work and ourselves. After each goal was realized and achieved, the "QUEST" was not over, "FOR AS LONG AS ONE HAS A DREAM THERE REMAINS A 'QUEST' TO REACH."

Leaders

The receptionist and secretary gave help to students and visitors in finding the way about DCHS. The athletic director and his secretary led students and sports fans down the sports trail. The counselors gave guidance and helped the student body to prepare for the future. The principals helped everyone to understand the rules and regulations of the school. The librarian and staff were always on hand in time of term-paper-crisis. The nurse helped heal ailments and put everyone back on the educational pathway.

The Student Voice

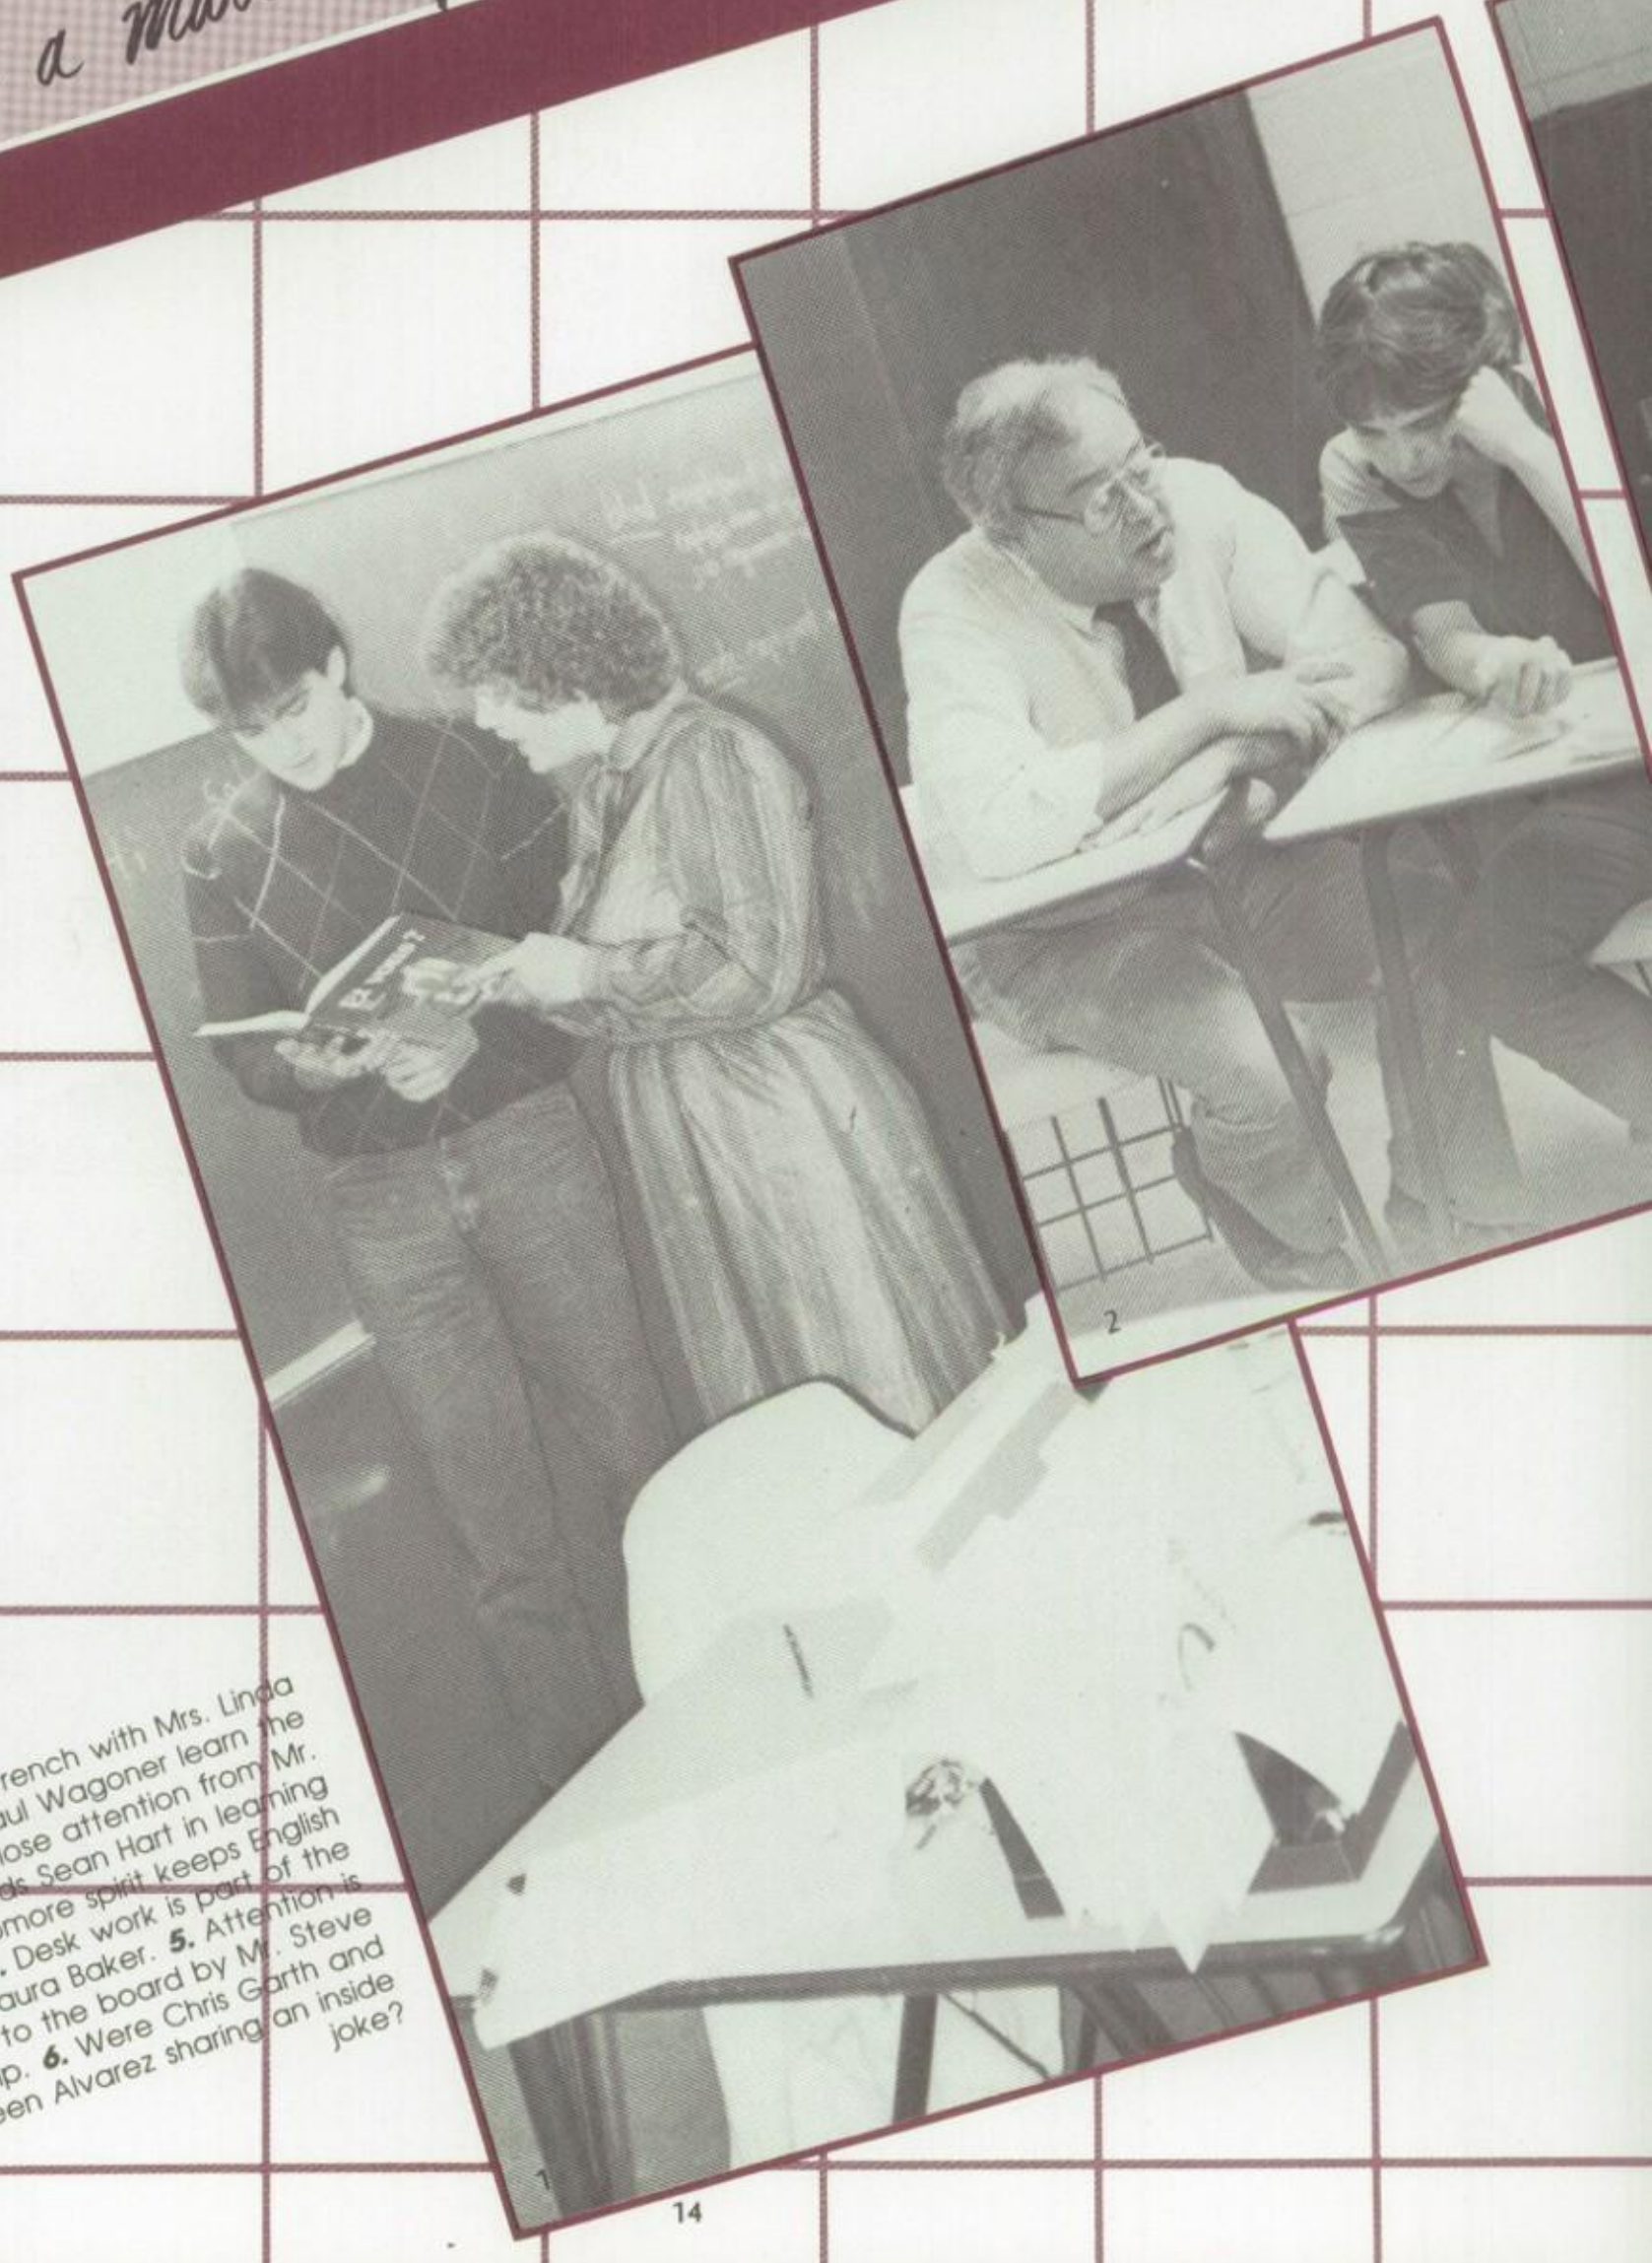
Student Council started the year with ideas and energy. Officers attended a workshop and brought back unlimited ideas to DCHS. The council pulled off another successful homecoming. Tempers flared and nerves were wrecked, but the queen was crowned and all was well in ORACLE LAND. A Food Committee went to Frankfort to get ideas on how to improve the school lunch program. A Student Court was in the making. It would be involved in some student discipline matters. A student exchange between various school councils was in the wind. The council is yours, make it the best it can be.

4. Advisor Mr. Norman Miller, Vice President Shelley Michael, President Paul Wagoner, Secretary Ginger Humbarger, Treasurer Kim Cox. 5. Yes, Marla, that is the way it is going to be.

Language . . .
Only a matter of speaking



1. Conversing in French with Mrs. Linda Tyner helps Paul Wagoner learn the language. 2. Close attention from Mr. Abel Alvarez aids Sean Hart in learning well. 3. Sophomore spirit keeps English class alive. 4. Desk work is part of the job for Mrs. Laura Baker. 5. Attention is drawn to the board by Mr. Steve Heinekamp. 6. Were Chris Garth and Mrs. Earleen Alvarez sharing an inside joke?

In the course of the day at DCHS one can hear English used and abused. Learning proper usage is often found to be a trying experience. In the English Department students were faced with 2,000 word research papers, resumes, and numerous book reports. Along with regular English classes were those taught on levels according to each student's learning ability. Language added a new face by offering French to interested students. Learning and mastering a foreign language is a difficult goal to achieve. Whether seeking to perfect one's English, Spanish, or French, each worked hard to fulfill the "QUEST".

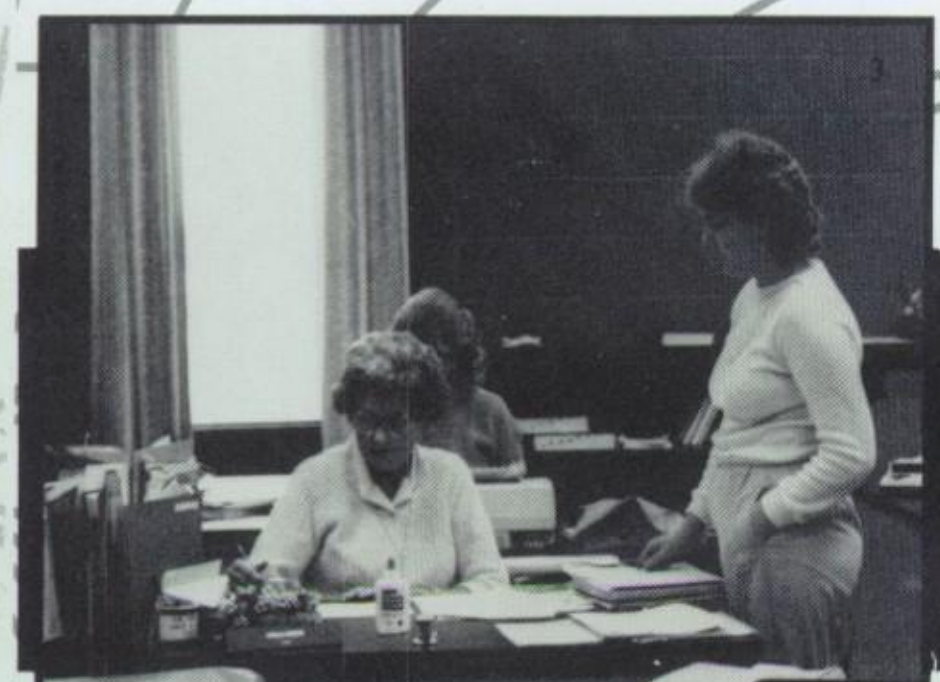
Business... Preparing for the future

Hard work and frustration paid off for the students at DCHS as they gained experience and attained knowledge for the world of business. While other students developed skills for their own use. The business department offered many courses. Among them were: Shorthand, Typing, General Business, Office Procedures, Accounting, and Recordkeeping. All of these classes were aimed at a common goal — preparing students for the future.

AKR



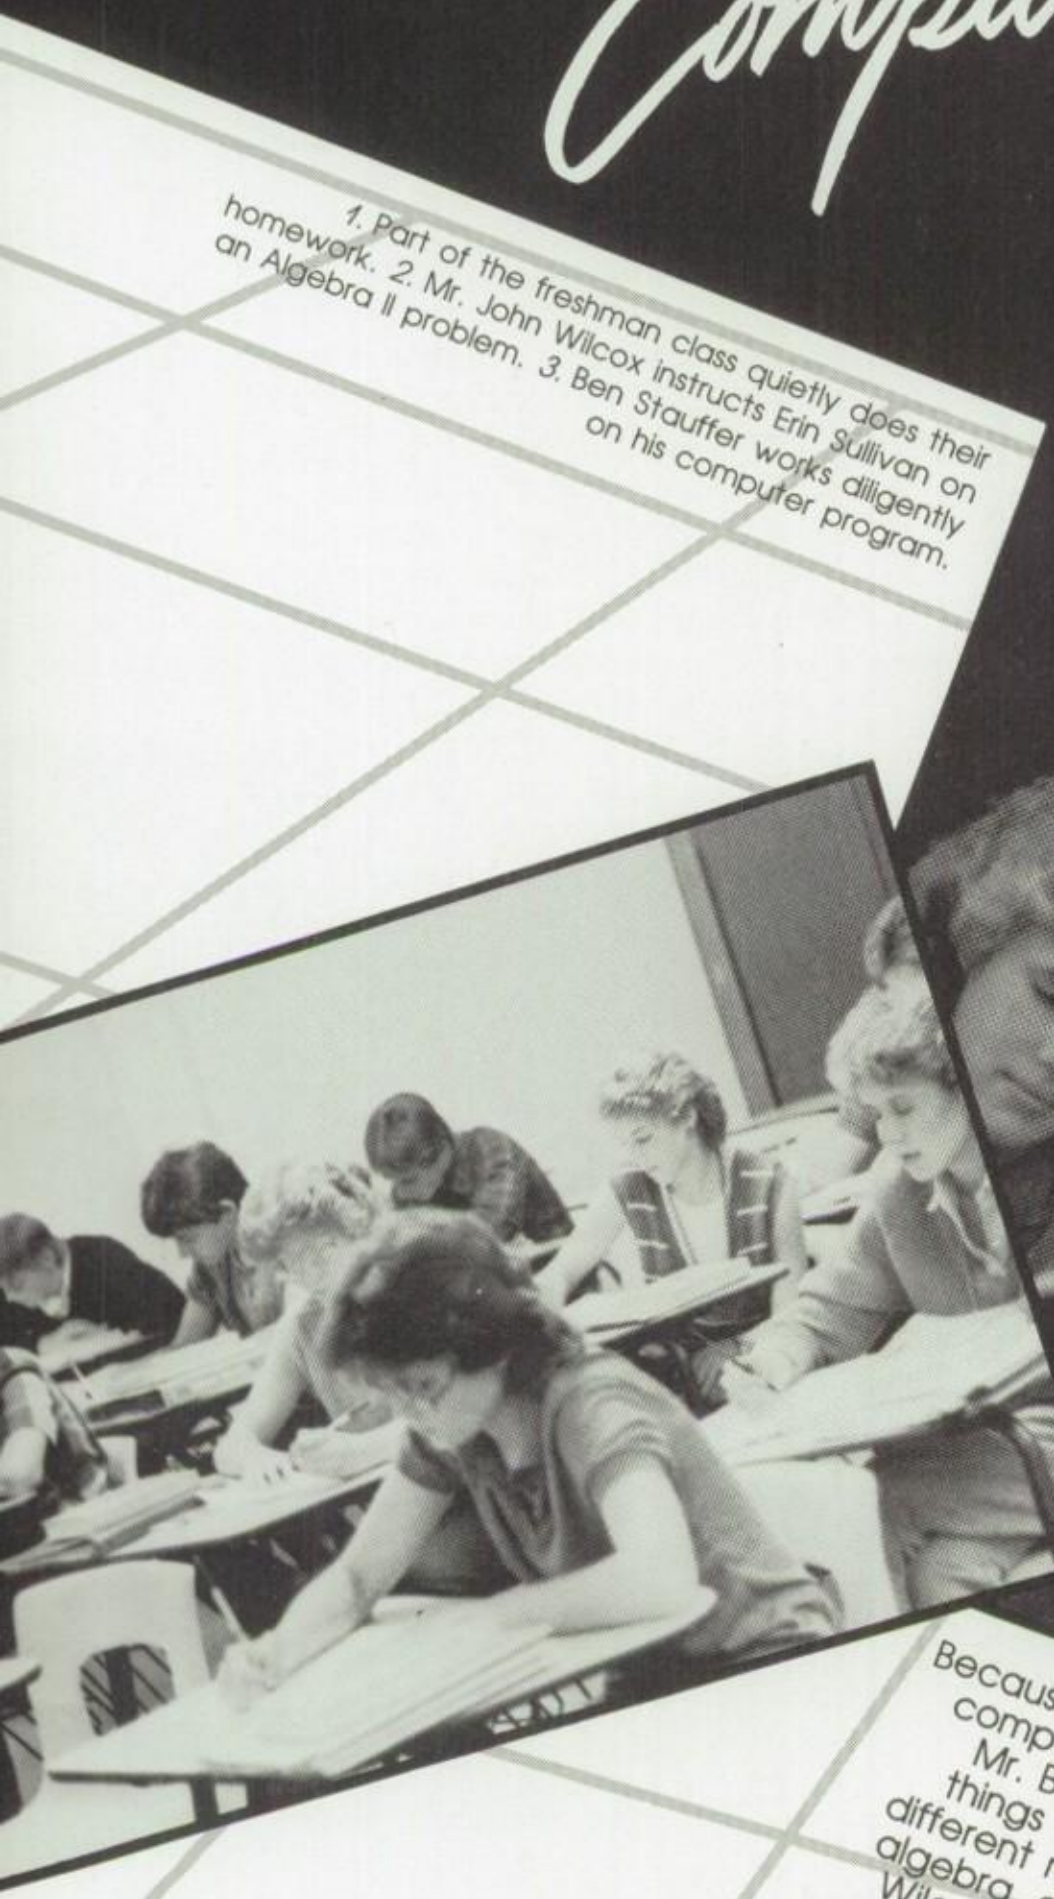
1. Typing takes time and practice as Anne Knoth demonstrates. 2. Hard work is an important part of business education. 3. The Office Procedures class works in a real office situation. 4. Ginger Barnaby observes as Mrs. Grimm demonstrates the fundamentals of filing. 5. Recordkeeping requires the complete concentration of Tammy Howard.

1. Psychology interests Jaci Stewart. 2. Mr. Miller tells it as it is in World History. 3. Visual aids help Mr. Seurynck explain a lesson. 4. Studying hard? 5. Wade McCarty participates in a discussion. 6. Mrs. Chris Brown discusses a tough assignment with Travis Dillman and Terry Hammond. 7. Tina Brouhard studies the information carefully for her lesson.

Lessons about Life

Among the most important classes at DCHS are the social studies courses. They deal with how the people of the world have and still are working, learning, feeling, governing, and worshiping. The social studies classes which are mandatory for students are: World History, for the sophomore class; United States History, for the junior class; and government, for the senior class. Economics, psychology, and sociology are elective classes which may be taken by juniors and seniors.

Math and Computers

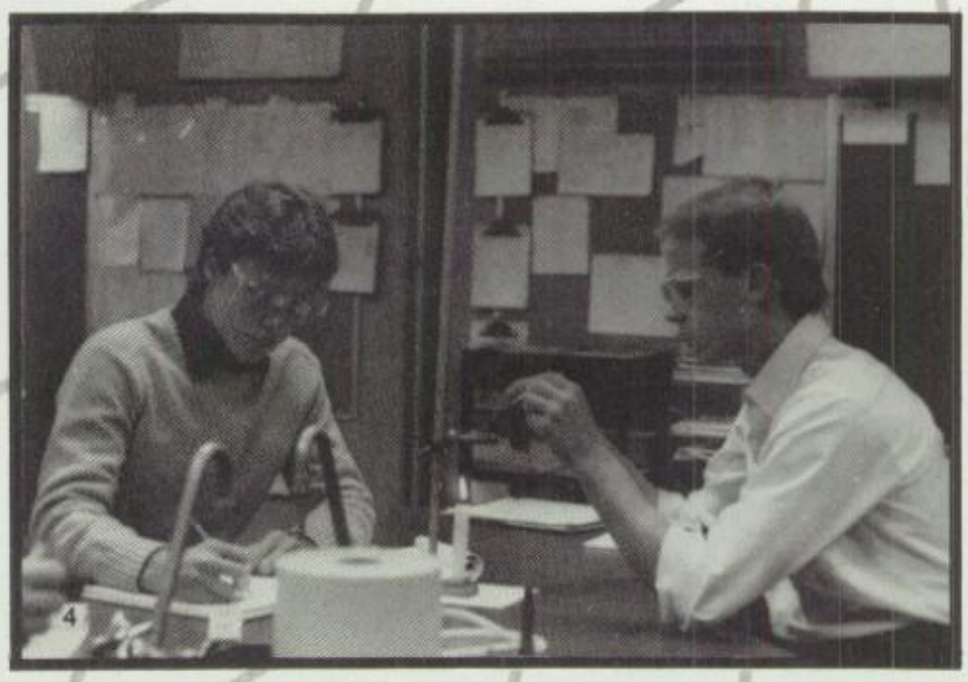


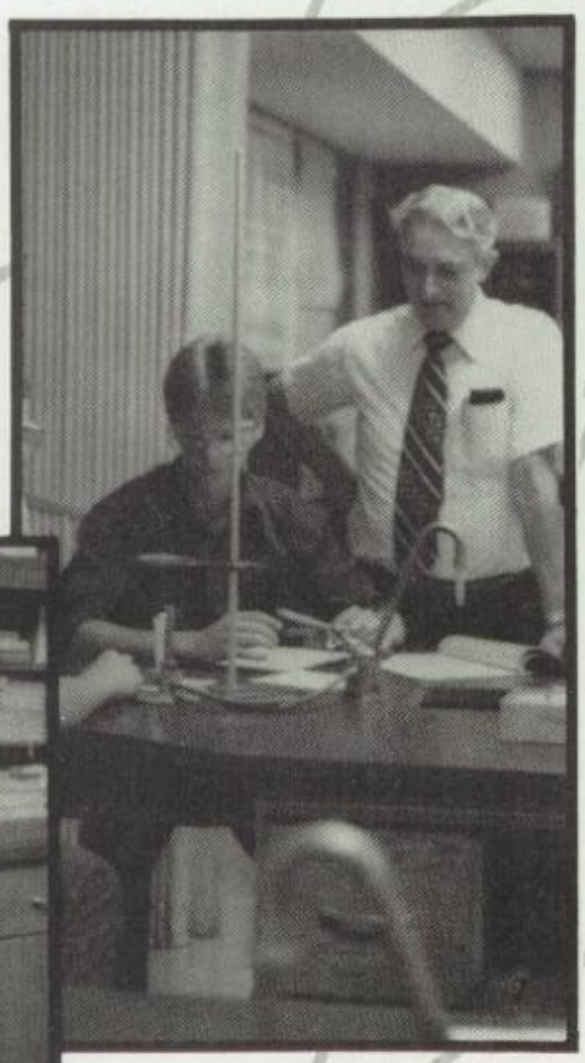
1. Part of the freshman class quietly does their homework. 2. Mr. John Wilcox instructs Erin Sullivan on an Algebra II problem. 3. Ben Stauffer works diligently on his computer program.

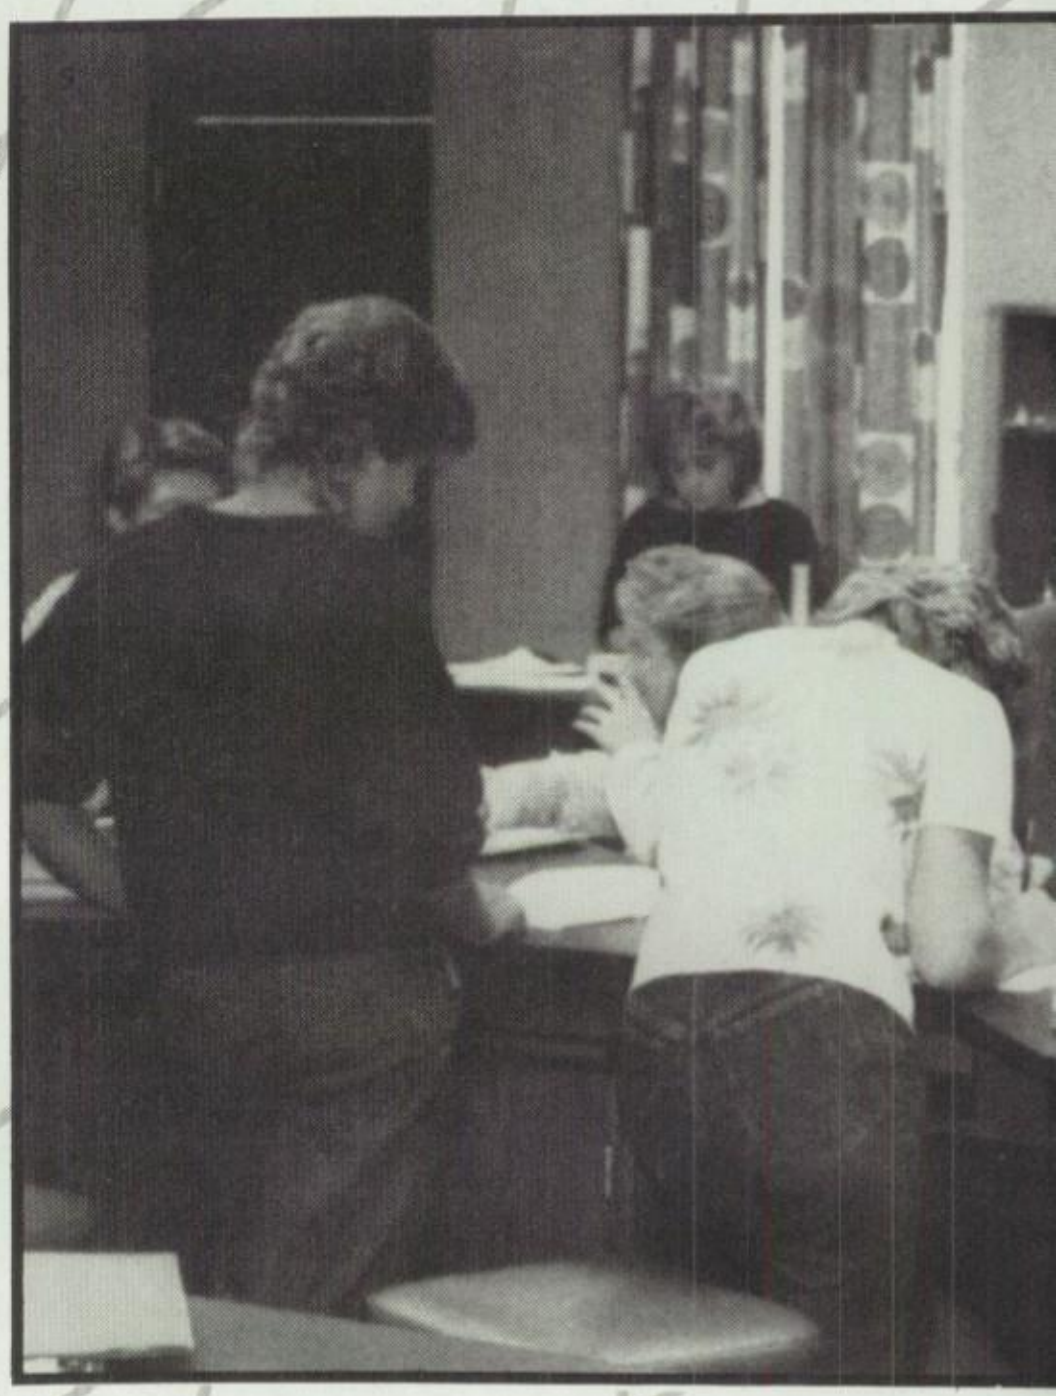
Because the use of computers was rising fast, the enrollment in computer classes at D.C.H.S. also rose. Under the direction of Mr. Bob Tyner the students learned many new and exciting things that will help them in future years. There were several different math classes available among which are; basic math, algebra, geometry and trigonometry to name a few. Mr. John Wilcox taught Algebra I, II and senior advanced classes. Basic math was taught by Miss Janice Chance. Mr. Bob Tyner taught geometry and Mr. Stuart Mathis taught algebra and geometry.

4. A discussion of the assignment leads to mutual benefit for both Don Hurst and Joe Jeffries. 5. Brian Delaney puts an answer to a difficult problem on the chalkboard.

1. A helping hand is given by Mr. David Hanna. 2. Watching the experiment, Mr. Charles Geheb wonders about the safety of his life. 3. Are we having fun yet?







4. A collaborative effort helps Brad Powlen and Tom Bullington get the experiment done. 5. Freshmen girls stick to their studies in biology class. 6. By explaining the brain, Mr. Mike Jones develops the brain.

The responsibility of teaching the science classes offered at DCHS was split by Mr. David Hanna, Mr. Charles Geheb, and Mr. Mike Jones. Mr. Jones and Mr. Hanna taught the biology courses. Biology, a required subject, was usually taken at the freshman level. To quite a few, advanced biology was an enjoyable experience to expand on the knowledge of plants and animals gained in the first year of biology. Mr. Geheb taught the physics and chemistry classes given at the junior and senior levels. Students gained instruction in the various procedures of experimentation with the capable help of these three instructors. They used this instruction to explore into the many reasons as to why things occur as they do in their lives.

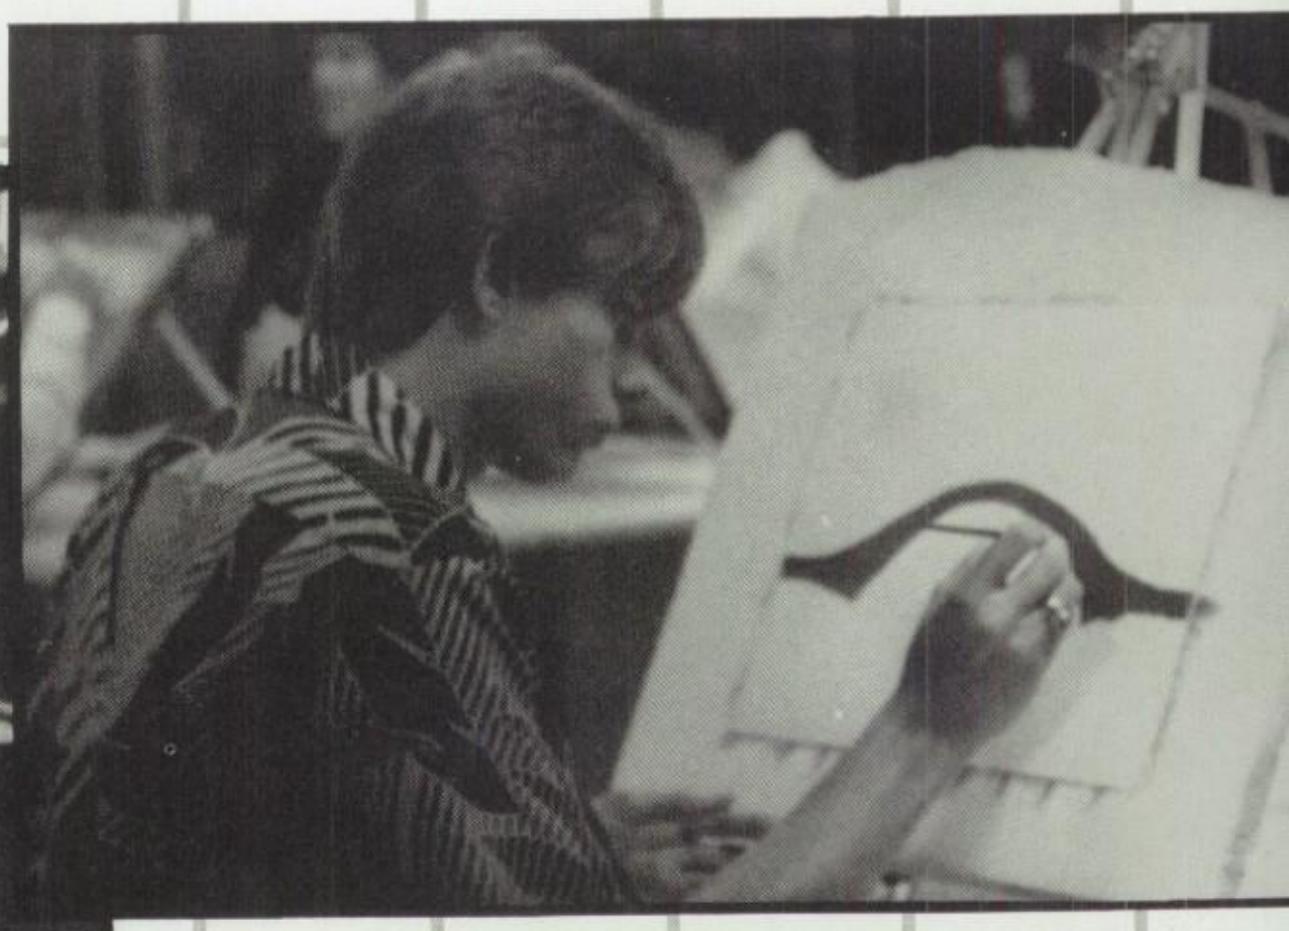
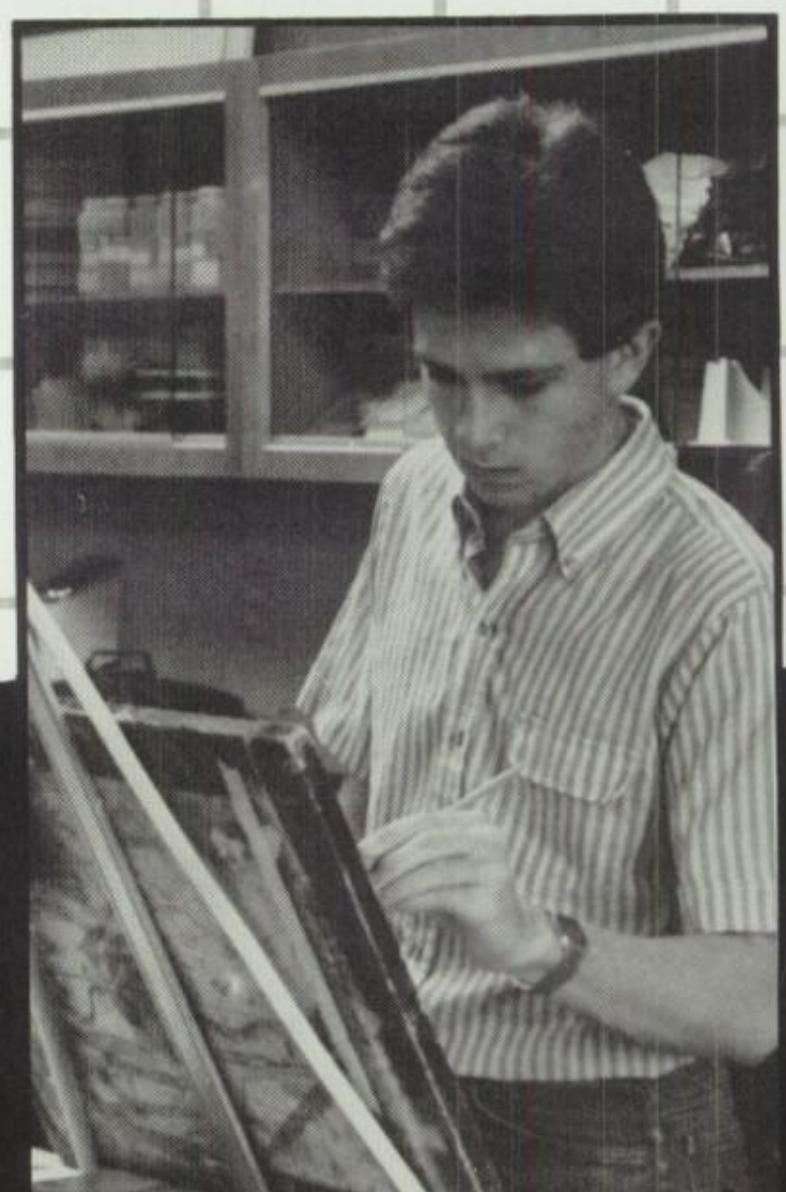
Expression through the Arts



The fine arts department at DCHS includes choir and band, as well as the visual arts. This branch of learning depends on practice and hard work to develop skills and demonstrate excellence in execution and performance. More importantly, the students learned an appreciation of the arts. AKR



1. Michelle Fife shows that a good performance depends on practice. 2. With a steady hand, Nick Varkonyi expresses his ideas on canvas. 3. Art II student Alan Fehrholz learns the basic skills of acrylic painting. 4. Dedication and hard work, what band is all about. 5. Freshman choir students await further instruction. 6. Using a loom, a weaving is completed by Cindy Hill.

Growing for the Future

Home economic classes prepared students to live productive lives. Foods, Family Planning, Child Development, and Clothing were among studies offered. Armed with meaningful information, students learned to prepare and serve attractive and nutritious meals, care for children, construct clothing, and manage a home. Mrs. Bedeva Bowling taught H.E. courses.

In the Agriculture Wing of DCHS, students discovered the importance of agriculture and horticulture in their lives. Ag classes taught about the different soil types, maintenance of farm equipment, and pertinent information on livestock. Mrs. Beth Theobald and Mr. Ross Striebeck taught those classes and helped their students to grow for the future.

Dexterity

Physical Education classes were like no others. One applied skills and remembered old limitations. Courses varied from aerobic dancing and gymnastics to active involvement in games and athletic contests.

Driver Education was designed to promote safety and skilled driving on the highway.

1. Careful calculation is needed in a Graphic Arts assignment. 2. IA department is co-educational. 3. Woods classes call for thorough understanding of machinery. 4. Jennifer Dill adjusts a safety belt for "flips" exercises. 5. Daily exercise helps keep the body trim. 6. Game rules are explained by Mr. Randy German. 7. On one day, one is a driver, on another — a passenger. 8. Mr. John Beach assists a student with a class project.

Everyone has personal quests and dreams, as varied as pebbles on a shore. Some have made their life's quest that of helping others to reach their own personal goals. No dream can be achieved, no obstacle conquered, without a fair amount of help and direction. The faculty of DCHS provides that necessary element. The teaching staff is in the business of conditioning students for the game of life. Their talented efforts produce many all-star players, victorious in their quests.

"Is it over?" he asked.

"No, my friend, it has only begun! We have just started to live. Some of us will go on for more schooling, some of us into the work force, and some of us will only exist."

"It's not fair," he said. "Why are we leaving our friends?"

"You are not leaving your friends, you're only searching for the ones you have not yet found. Remember the fifth grade and who you were in love with? When did we learn the meaning of love? Have we done so, yet? We've all been together for seven years sharing our dreams, hopes, and fears. We've depended on our friends to pick us up when reality slapped us in the face."

"Will we always remember?" he asked.

"Of course. We'll remember — The Dukes and Pink Ladies — Delphia's homecooking — Track & Field day (that time we were all first together) — Seniors Against The National Deficit! Time goes on, people, places, and faces change. Many of the things we cherished will be taken from us, but NOT our memories of our family — the Class of '86."

TODAY'S GOVERNMENT

Seventeen Junior Rotarians were chosen for the 1985-86 school year. These lucky fellows went every Tuesday to eat a nice lunch and hear a guest speaker. The Rotarians also helped Thomas Osterby reach his dream of being a Foreign Exchange Student. (His homeland in Denmark.)

Hoosier Girls & Boys Staters spent a week at Indiana State University getting a taste of government. They were exposed to many new ideas about their surrounding politics. Hearing lectures, the Staters expanded their knowledge of how our political system works.

This is your year, Young man! You will reach a crossroads in your life, and looking onward you are wondering which path to follow. This is one certain day in my life I will never forget. I will never again be considered a DCHS student. I am history after I walk across that stage, I will walk in those doors right there! I will enter walking with people I consider my friends . . . people I've seen through thick and thin. People who I've laughed and cried with . . . people who I may never see again. We will walk into a gym filled with smiling faces and some even with a stream of tears running down those emotional faces. I am wondering what is running through dad's head? "She made it! I am proud and I can't let it show." That's my dad — never showing his feelings. We walk single file to our special seat. Sitting there I listen to three of my classmates make speeches on our senior year while my own special memories run through my head. Exiting through those doors right there, I'll walk into what is called the "real world." I cry and hug my friends of 13 long years — my time with them is finally over. Our years of pressure are over. Not true I have been told, the pressure is only starting. The world is now and my doorstep and I can either fly with eagles or clip my wings and accept my situation. So this is graduation? Laughing, crying, hugging, leaving. I wish you life and love, my friend. You are a part of my life I'll never forget! A Senior slm

The Sophomore Class spent their year renewing old acquaintances, roaming over old familiar haunts, and discovering many new things that they never knew existed. Although they still had some required courses, the students of this class were able to choose more courses better suited to putting them on the path leading to their individual futures.

Their quest for unique lives had started the year before, but in the rush of learning new things, they might have forgotten what the struggle was for. This second year restated most emphatically this important quest and showed them a broader understanding of life in general.

New to DCHS, the class of '89 found themselves faced with new teachers, new friends, and many problems. After a short time they began to take part in school activities. They participated in the homecoming activities, and wearing red as their class color, won the "Color Day" competition. Later in the year, the class sponsored a dance as a fund raising project. Leading the class were Matt Franklin, President; Barbie Fuller, vice-president; Stacy Sledd, secretary; and Julie Chapman, treasurer. The Freshman had adjusted well, and looked forward to the rest of their years at DCHS.

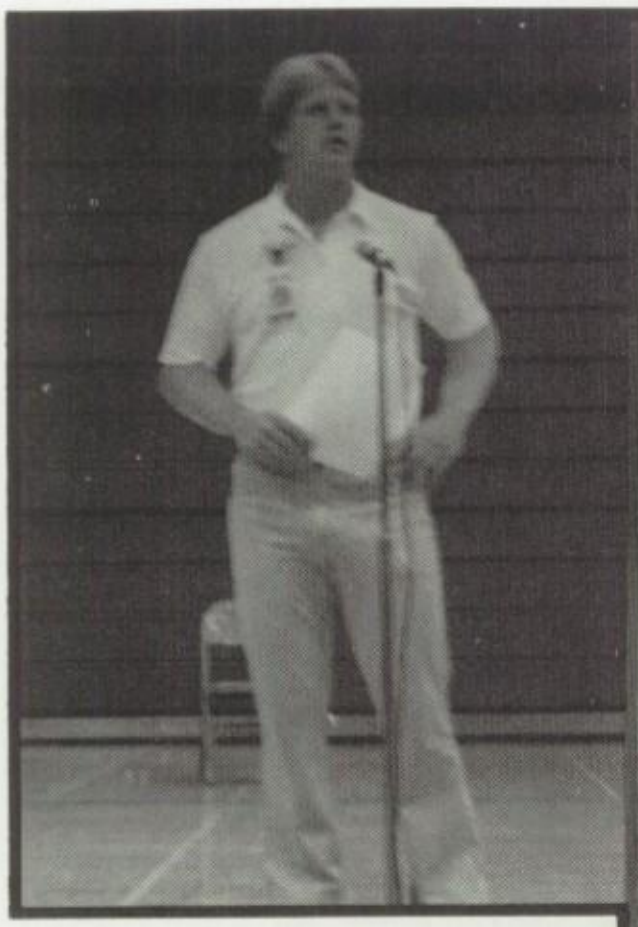
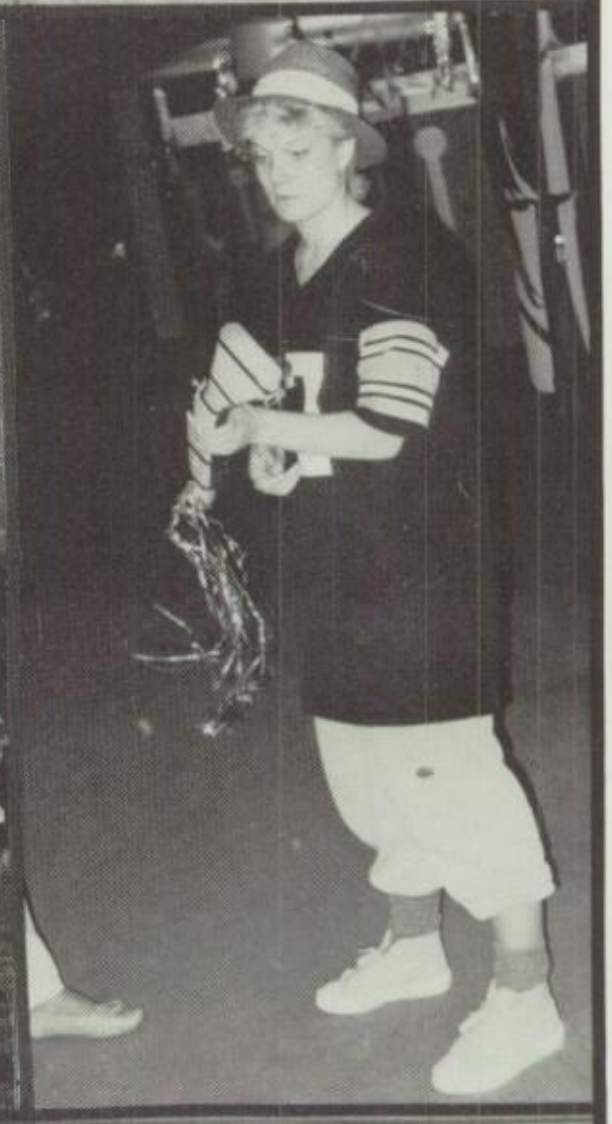
ORACLE HOMECOMING





There was a special sort of excitement during the week of September 30-October 4. For this was homecoming week at DCHS. There were various activities especially planned for that week. Among several were: Dress Day, Toga Day, Black and Gold Day, Dress-Down Day, and Martian-Future Day. There was competition between the classes. Each class group was responsible for a class banner and locker decorations. Friday afternoon had a Pep Session to prepare for the game. The queen contestants, the princesses, and the escorts were recognized. Senior Erin Sullivan was crowned 1985 Homecoming Queen during halftime at the game. It was a cold and rainy Friday night, but the crowd and players were ready for the homecoming game. The Oracle Football Team played an excellent game but were defeated by a strong Central Catholic team 7-6.

YOUTH A.R.C. DONATES TIME

Youth A.R.C. once again filled their yeear with many activities designed only to entertain the youngsters at Hillcrest. They started off their fun-filled year with their annual Halloween costume party. Shortly after, a secret pals campaign was started. Members were assigned a secret pal to send gifts and cards. In mid-November, officers Amy Sledd, Jodi Strasser, and Michelle Miller were escorted by Advisor Mrs. Debra Fisher to a county A.R.C. meeting. Two weeks later, they had a film festival in the Ag. Wing. The last event of 1985 was a Christmas celebration. The events of 1986 included a St. Valentine's party and a skating party.

BONJOUR, LE CERCLE FRANCAIS!

LENDING A FOREIGN ACCENT

DCHS was privileged to receive into its halls, three unique and fascinating individuals, all of whom were residents of Europe.

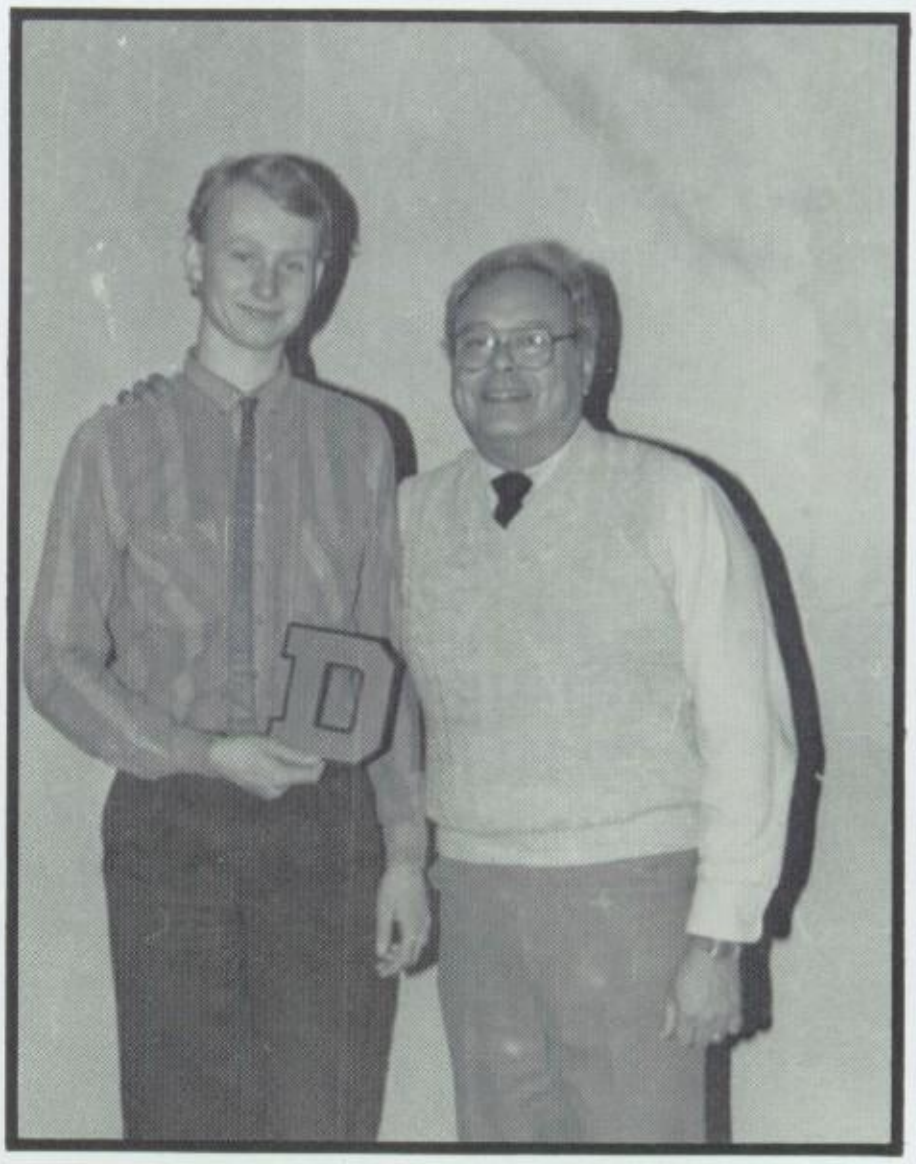
It takes a difinitive amount of courage to journey thousands of miles from one's home to live and study among strangers who speak a different language and perform strange customs, but these stout-hearted oracles proved they could not only cope in such extreme conditions, but that they could also prosper. cmm

UTE HEINEN

With her sparkling personality, eager grin and easy-going disposition, Ute Heinen made an impact on DCHS that will not be soon forgotten. With her fluent knowledge of four different languages, German born Ute made the transition to a different lifestyle with an ease that displayed her versatility and determination. Ute resided with the Wallmanns.

ANITA CHRISTIANSEN

One of the Sunshine Society's most active members was not a Hoosier, but rather, a native of Aarhus, Denmark. Anita Christiansen brought a different ray of sunshine to the club and to all who met her. Anita spent her senior year in the residence of Randy and Neda Duff. She carried across the ocean with her a unique and exciting view of the Danish people.



THOMAS OSTERBY

Thomas Osterby, a native of Denmark, made history at DCHS when he became the first foreign exchange student to receive a varsity letter for his accomplishments in swimming. Thomas's offbeat humor, as well as his academic and athletic endeavors branded him a true oracle and an asset to DCHS.

A TALE OF TRAGEDY AND TRIUMPH —

"Whose Life Is It Anyway?" was the title of the DCHS fall play and also the question each member of the audience was asked to consider. The play is the story of a sculptor, Ken Harrison, who is seriously injured in an auto accident. Left paralyzed and condemned to a life dependent on the help of others, Ken takes steps to terminate his life support treatment. With the help of his doctor, Joan Scott, and his lawyers, Ken fights to regain the basic human rights of freedom and control over one's own destiny. After a lengthy legal battle with the hospital, Ken is finally granted his wish, an end to his medical treatment and subsequently, an end to his life.

On March 14 and 15, 1986, the drama students of DCHS swept the audience back in time to the village of Anatevka on the eve of the Russian Revolutionary period. The play, Fiddler on the Roof, revolved around a Jewish family trying to hold fast to Jewish Tradition despite the changes that were taking place.

Tevye, superbly played by senior Paul Wagoner, was the father frustrated by the problems he encountered in the turmoil of the changing times. When his daughters chose their own husbands, instead of the matchmaker, with the new concept of love, Tevye questioned if there was love in his own traditional marriage. In a poignant scene with his wife Golde, Tevye asked her, "Do you love me?"

In the conclusion, the Jews of Anatevka were forced to leave the village because of political prejudices. Tevye and his family looked toward America to try and regain the home and traditions they were forced to leave behind in Russia.

The combined efforts of the band, crews, directors, and characters presented yet another excellent performance typical of the DCHS Little Theatre.

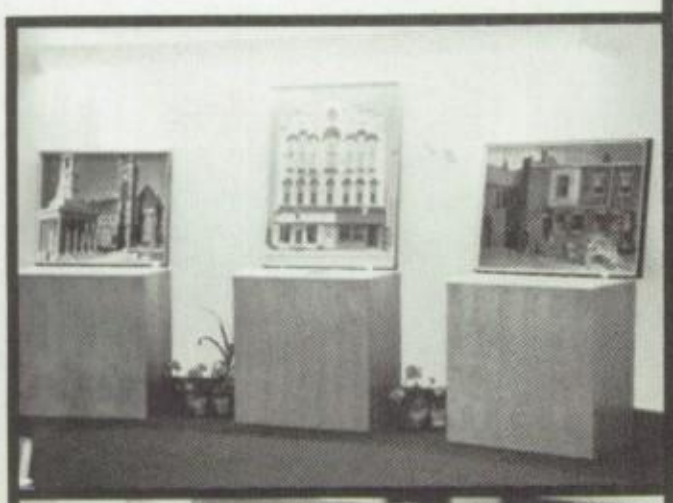
ART — '86

Art: An American Heritage was the theme of April 27-May 2 art show. Guest artists were: Harry Davis, Lois Davis, Rob O'Dell, George Elliott, Jeanne Clausen, & Art Faculty of Purdue University. Area artists entered many works and opening day artisans of varied crafts displayed their workmanship. Art students exhibited numerous fine examples of their many class projects.



THE CHEERLEADERS OF DCHS

The girls who made up the cheerleaders were unique individuals. They devoted much of their free time to come in and work on creating new cheers as well as practicing on old ones. When it came time for Homecoming, they stayed after school to put up decorations in the Commons and on the lockers. Also, they decided on special days during Homecoming like Toga Day, Dress Down Day & Black and Gold Day. When money was low they sponsored a dance after one of the ball games. It takes much dedication to go to all of the football and basketball games at home and away. Sometimes one of them lost her voice and that is dedication. Good job, girls.

TEAM SPIRIT

Varsity "D" Clubs were for the athletic students of DCHS. Leading the men of Varsity D were President Tom Gray, Vice President John Kipp, Secretary Brian Skurka, and Treasurer Matt Zimpfer. The boys sponsored dances, helped at the relays, had raffles, and along with the girls, they planned a ski trip.

Varsity D women sold cakes and raffled tickets during football and basketball seasons. Their officers were President Jerlyn Rogers, Vice President Maggie McCormick, and Secretary-Treasurer Erin Sullivan. mls

CONCERT CHOIR — THE RIGHT STUFF

The Concert Choir spent their first year as a type of sponge. They soaked up all of the information that was fed to them, such as how to perform better and generally how to improve their singing abilities. They learned just exactly what was expected of them if they did decide to continue down the path of vocal music. And although they found it wasn't all fun and games, a good time could still be found.

A CAPELLA — FULL OF TALENT

The A Cappella Choir was filled to overflowing with both new and old talent. Many different events were added to their already busy schedule. In November, they added their voices with those of Concert Choir and various Entertainer groups to produce a cassette tape that differed between Christmas, classical and contemporary. Then, for the first time in about five years, Delphi Community High School hosted the annual Bi-County Music Festival. That is where area school choirs get together at the host school for one day of practice before putting on a program that same evening. A guest director was on hand to lead the choir in song.

The Entertainers, led by Mr. Kevin Kaysar, tried something different this year. Instead of just performing as a large group, they split up into three different groups. The boys, alone, made up one group, the girls another, with the whole group being the third. All three groups went to contest on the first of February. The girls sang a Division II song titled Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy and received a first place. The boys and the entire group took Division I songs and advanced to the State Contest, February 22. They had many events besides this. They sang at nursing homes and brought a touch of vocal joy to a sick friend in the hospital. The group also sang for the Chamber of Commerce at the annual banquet. Churches and the State Hospital were on their list of stops, not even mentioning the regular programs they sang at with the choirs. This group has really proved to be THE MA Group, Most Active!

This page was made for all of the people who were beginning, or ending their own individual quest of striving to do whatever they wanted to do, and being the best at such a skill. Many students who were in a bigger choir joined a smaller group of more specialized singers to follow that appointed quest. Those in Entertainers, Madrigals, the Barbershop Quartet, and anyone else who gave their all, were the ones for whom this was a tribute. Two girls who have probably never been recognized for such contributions have sung at all home games for at least two years . . . Candy Clawson and Amy Sledd gave up much of their personal time to bring to home game fans the national anthem. Chris Flora, too, gave consistantly of her talents at the piano to entertain school and community during her high school career. Everyone who was a part of the vocal music department had, at one time or another, stayed late to practice, gone over an old line at least one more time, or went through the last minute butterflies to experience the thrill of performing for a live audience. This one's for all that you did!

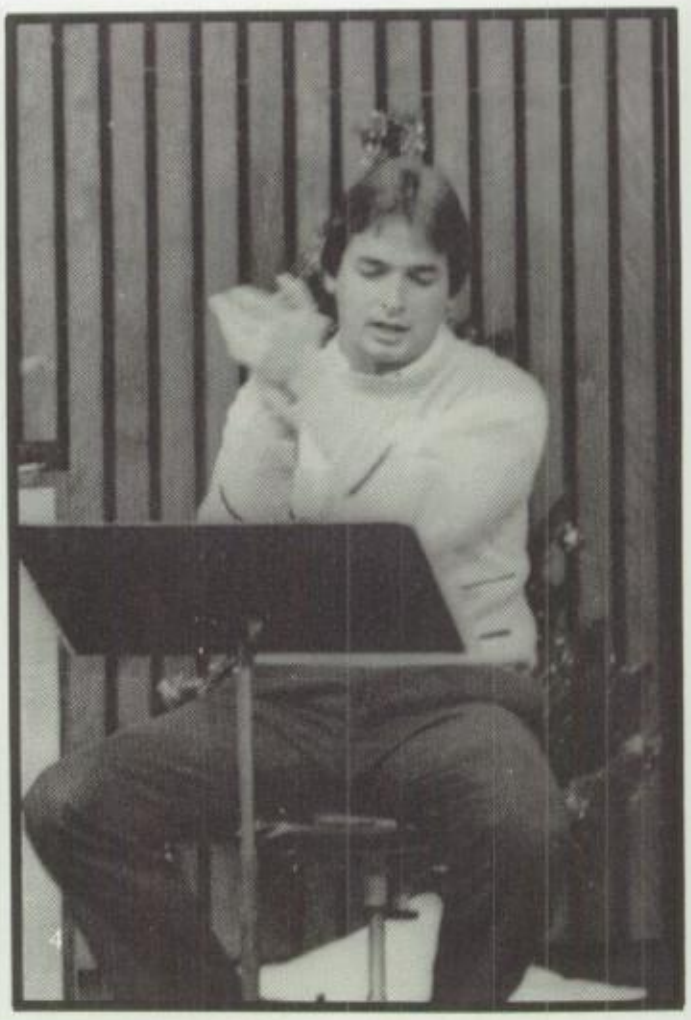
Band - Take



The 1985-86 marching band got under way with its new director, Mr. Darin Sorley. Mr. Sorley graduated from Butler University. After the football season the band went into concert music, but was interrupted by the basketball season. On Monday, December 23, the Pep band and the Pon-pom girls traveled to Purdue to play at the Purdue vs. DePaul basketball game. After the basketball season they got back into concert band. On March 3 and 4, DCHS hosted the annual Bi-County Music Festival. The band combined with 4 other schools, (Frontier, North White, Tri-County, and Twin Lakes,) to give a concert, following the choir on Tuesday the 4th.

The girls of Pom Pon, Rifles, and Flags, were a hard working group. They put much time and energy. In return, they were able to do special things like going to Purdue and eating at a fine restaurant at end of year. Three of the girls have been nationally selected to go to New York during the summer to march with other American girls in a special tribute to The Statue of Liberty. This march will be televised on ABC.

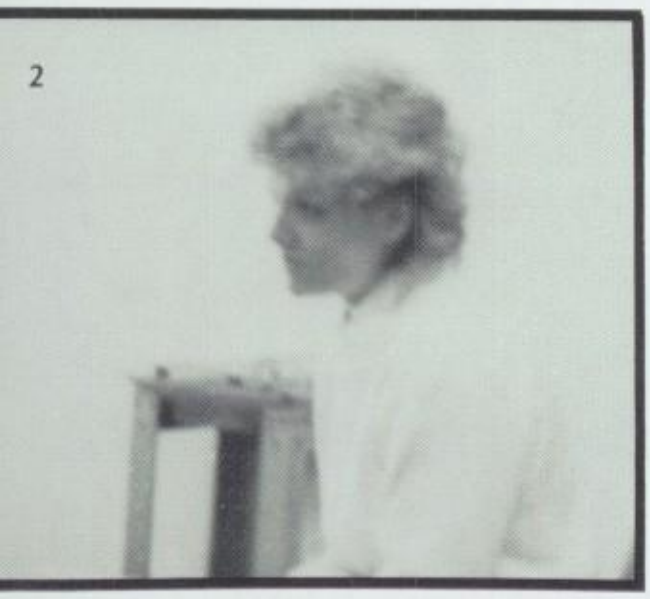
EXPERIENCE IN JOURNALISM



The Parnassus staff was responsible for informing students of important events that happened monthly. They worked hard on getting the paper out each month and learned a lot about writing stories, meeting deadlines, and laying out pages. Although they found it quite a challenge, this class had a lot of fun and greatly benefited from this first hand experience with journalism.

The searching and striving came to an emotional end on October 26, 1985, in the final game of volleyball sectionals. Ending second in sectional is no shame when you consider the odds against the team's losing record. Being number one isn't always for the best, the name of the game is to have fun and to work together. Sportsmanship should be measured by team participation and dedication. This isn't always the case. Through times that could have torn the Lady Oracles apart, they stood strong and stood together. The seniors faced a trying year with many changes. Their memories of volleyball will stay close to their hearts.

The 1985-86 Boys Varsity Basketball team had a very interesting year. The men of the hardwood showed a vast and ever increasing amount of skill in the game. They displayed a knack for the game which thrilled all who were fortunate to attend. DCHS's guys kept the honor of the school by taking several victories over some formidable squads. In the capable hands of Coach Mike Jones, they constantly proved that DCHS is a factor to be considered. By defeating Harrison in the preliminary rounds of the sectionals, they moved on to the finals where they played an undefeated Jeff squad. When in pressure situations, they consistently fought until the end and never gave up. This determination saved many games and gave fans an exciting year.

The B-team also did remarkably well with a winning record of 5 wins and only 4 losses. While both teams played fewer games, they still showed that they knew how to play the sport. The frosh represented their school in the upmost fashion. They showed that DCHS can win. These young men of the hardwood gave the impression that the school will not be wanting for good athletes for a long time.

The 1985-86 JV Basketball team got under way again. Last year they didn't have enough players to make a team. The JV also has a new coach, Karen Hanni. Coach Hanni finished out the season with a 8-7 record. Coach Hanni also hopes to improve her record next year.

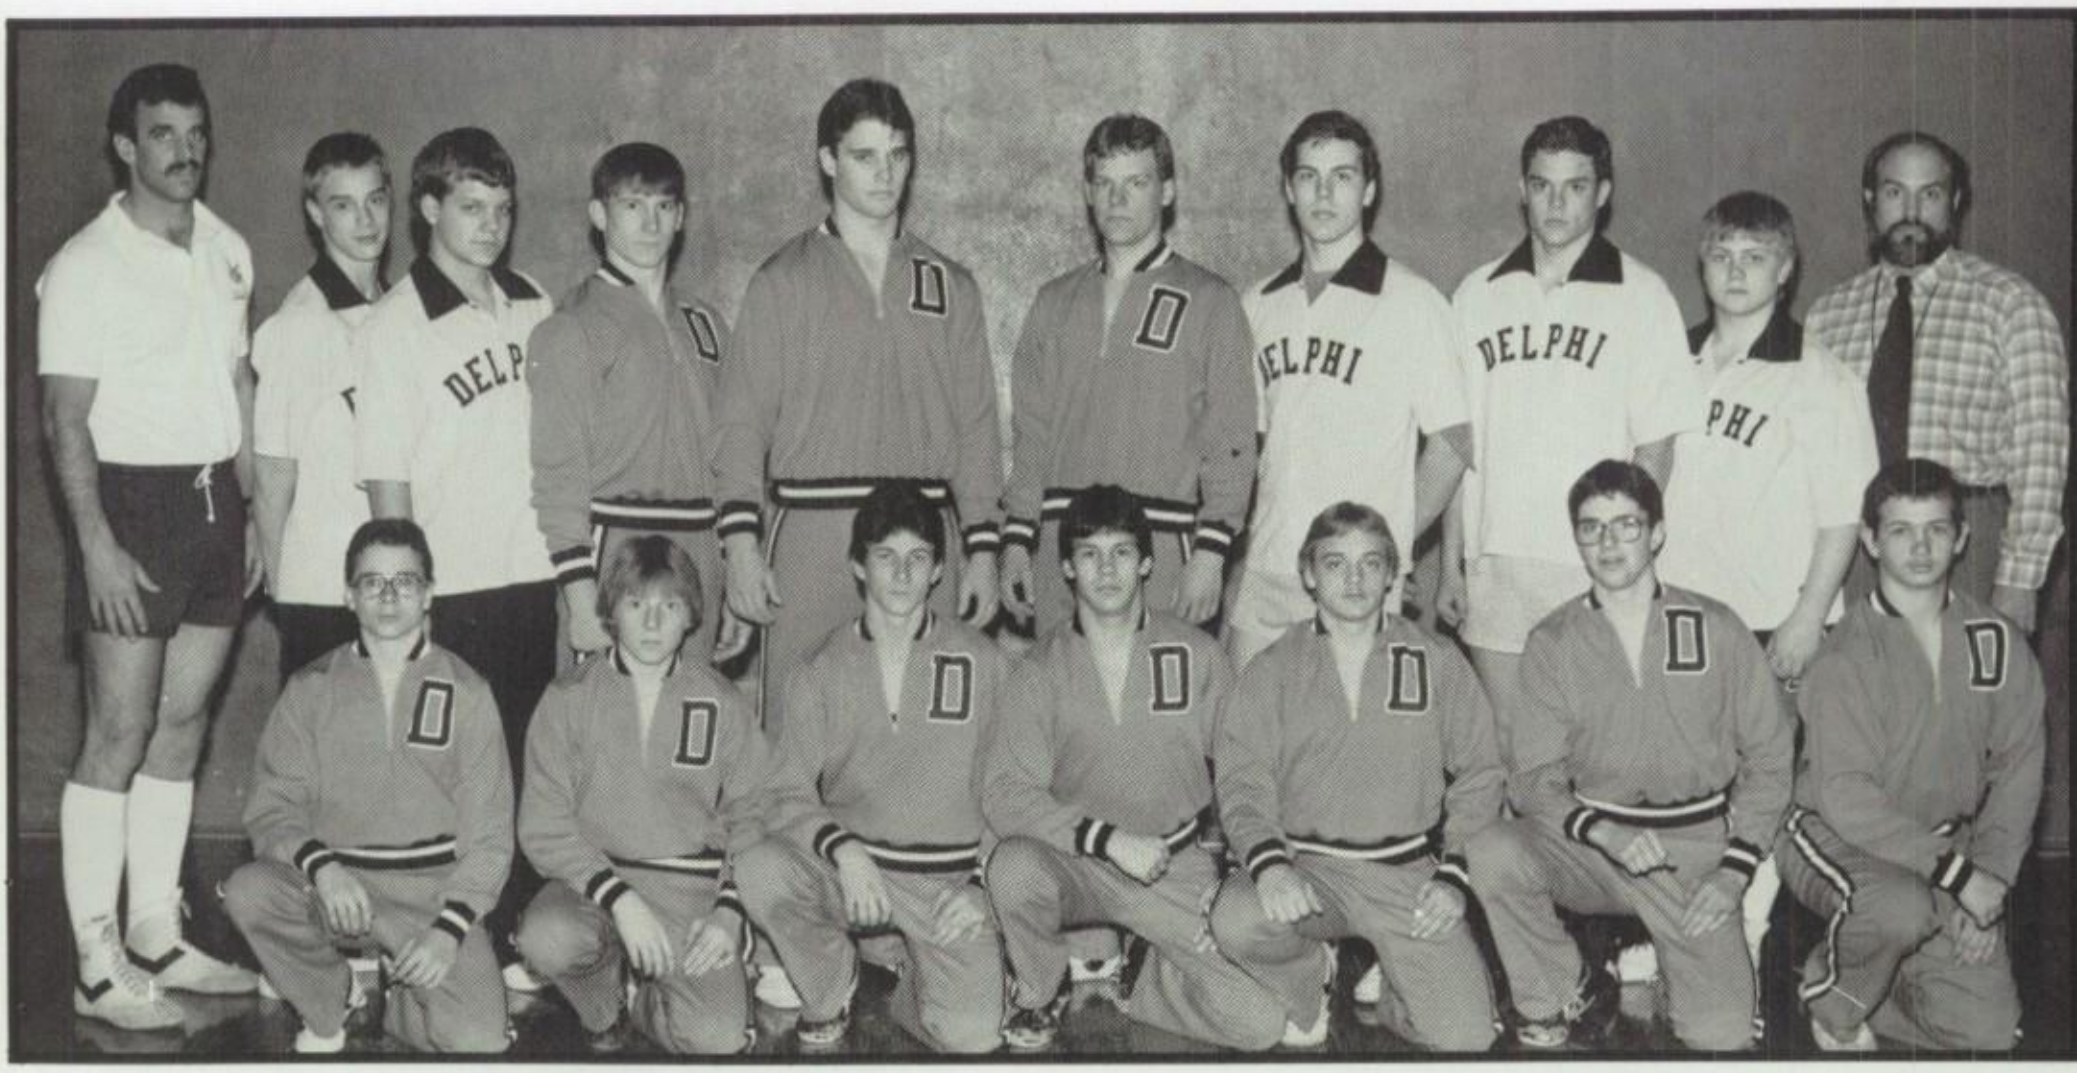
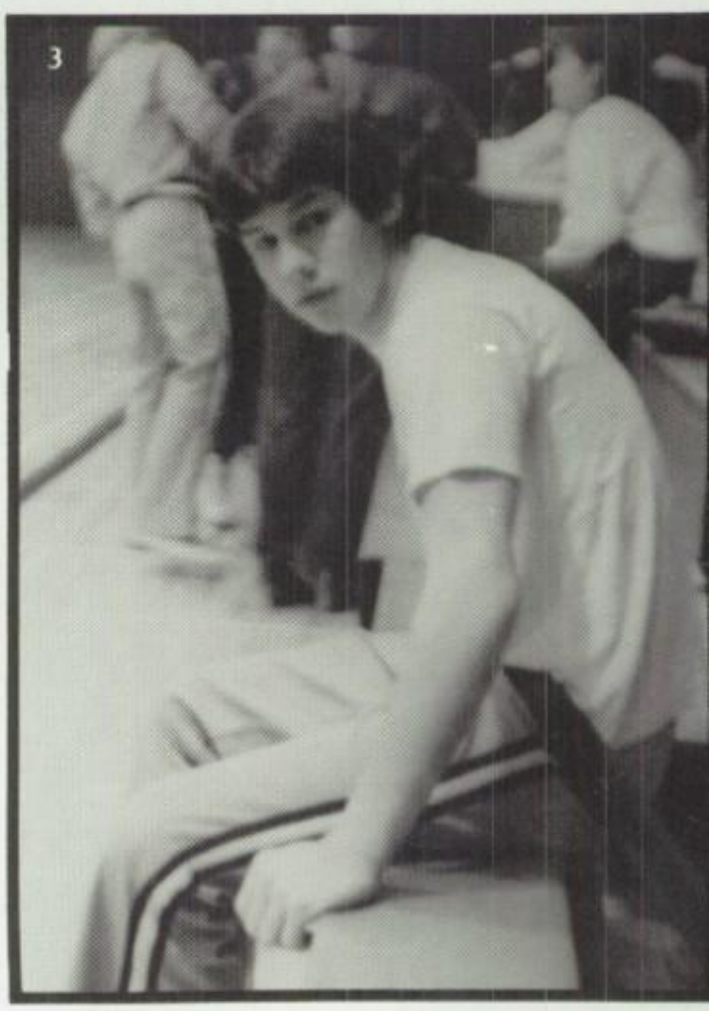
TOUGH MEN FOR





The wrestling team had a very exciting year. With extremely large amounts of skill, the grapplers managed to snatch victory from many opposing squads. The men constantly gave the sport their best effort in pinning the opponent to the mat in an incredibly short amount of time. With the help of coaches William Gray and Phil Brummett, they improved increasingly well as the season progressed. John Kipp displayed talent as he took victories in sectional, regional, and semi-state. Due to injury, he was unable to compete at the state level.

DCHS CLASS OF 1986 MOTTO
The memories will fade with today's sunset, but may we always look for tomorrow's horizons.

During our trials and tribulations of growing up we encounter the QUEST of choosing the right roads that will lead us to success. Reaching our separate crossroads we find ourselves parting with friends we have grown up with . . . "letting go is such sweet sorrow" . . .

We, the Editors of the 1986 Oracle, hope the words and pictures held within these pages will hold memories for many years to come. To produce a matchless yearbook, it takes teamwork and creative minds. To the Staff of 1986, thanks for your time and efforts. We appreciate those students who stood by the staff's decisions with faith in us and in our work. Special thanks to the Administration and Faculty for moral support and for allowing us to interrupt classes. Special thanks to Tri Kappa for sending one of the editors to camp every summer. Thanks to Jerry's for their expert photography which enhanced our pages. To our right-hand-man, Mr. Jack Sanders, your talent and experience carried us through. You dedicate so much of yourself to the Oracle Staff, and we appreciate it.
